It is the policy of Aiken Technical College to provide instruction through its Developmental Studies courses to strengthen basic academic skills. While Aiken Technical College remains committed to an open door admissions policy, students enrolled in certificate, diploma, or degree programs are required to complete developmental courses in English, Mathematics, Reading and/or college skills when their scores on mandatory placement tests indicate a need for remediation in order to succeed in college-level courses. The Vice President of Education and Training or Academic Deans may exempt students from this requirement.
